Western Economy

SINCE THE EARLY SETTLEMENT of the prairie provinces some thirty years ago, agriculture has been the basic industry. Even before the building of a transcontinental railway, hardy pioneers from the eastern provinces and elsewhere were attracted in large numbers by the opportunities this country offered for quick advancement. Here was the virgin, unlimited prairie awaiting the plow, with no impediment by way of stumps or stones to clear the land. Bountiful crops and a ready market for all the grain that could be grown and all the cattle and other livestock that could be raised. Settlers poured in, bringing new wealth to the country, trans-Canada railway lines were built, and branch lines criss-crossed the country.

Plenty Of Work Ready employment was furnished by railroad construction, the building of new towns, the construction of countless grain elevators, and many other activities always associated with the opening up of a new country. An excellent market was at hand for the lumber industry of British Columbia, as well as the fisheries and fruit growers. Truly the West was then the world's granary, the bread basket of the Empire, and no one foresaw the time when its products would be a drug on the market. As an aftermath of the Great World War, our European markets for wheat were virtually lost, owing to the self-sufficiency program adopted by many of the war-torn nations. With the decreased demand, there naturally followed lowered prices for wheat and other farm products, so that today in the midst of another world war, farmers have been asked to reduce their acreage sown to grain.

What To Be Done In order to secure a balanced economy for the West, it would appear necessary and advisable to look to the establishment of more diversified industry. Western spokesmen have frequently urged the Government to establish more war industries in the West. It has been pointed out that we have unlimited coal resources in Alberta and Saskatchewan. As the Lethbridge Herald aptly says there are tens of thousands of tons of scrap iron in the West which could be fabricated into war material. Why the necessity of shipping this iron to the east, when industries could be established here. It is not only during war-time, but we should look to the future for ways and means for providing employment through the setting up of industries. If we are going to retain our population and build up a prosperous country, we shall have to adopt new and more aggressive methods to attain that end.

Potatoes—Are Brothers Under The Skin

HIGH ON THE MARKET LIST—

If you are watching the food prices along with to get good food value for your money, then put potatoes and wheat with milk, cereals, and bread high on your market list.

THIS IS WHY—

The lovely potato is more important than we thought. In fact the potato is so valuable we must give him a seat of honor at the table. Why?—Well, Potatoes are cheap. Potatoes give you Vitamin C and iron. Energy and warmth.

THIS IS HOW MANY—

From 1 to 30 potatoes each day for each man, woman, older boy or older girl. From 1 1/2 to 2 potatoes each day for young children.

THESE ARE THE KINDS OF POTATOES—

First in our hearts and on our tables is the white or Irish potato. Then there is the sweet potato. The dark red or yellow of the sweet potato the richer it usually is in the "A" vitamin.

TWO WORDS OF WISDOM—

1. Don't diet by not eating potatoes at a meal and then later eating a dessert three times as fattening.

2. Give your family potatoes often and serve them in different ways.

OLD FAVORITES AND NEW DISHES—

1. Imagine Irish stew without potatoes!
2. Calf chowder demands potatoes
3. Cod fish cakes certainly require mashed potatoes in them.
4. What would a New England boiled dinner be without the big white potatoes?
5. Who does not like Shepherd's pie with its top "crust" of mashed potatoes.
6. Does your family dislike liver? Try cutting it, or grinding it, after boiling, and then mixing with cooked potatoes and seasonings. Serve on toast.
7. Do you like hash-browned potatoes?
8. Do you like browned potatoes and eggs scrambled together?
9. Potatoes and eggs in cream sauce are delicious.

The referential vitamin chart for hanging or framing in your kitchen is still free for the asking from the Western Division Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto.

Due To Bone Growth

Chicago Doctor Explains Why Many Men Lose Their Hair

Father's hair falls out and mother's doesn't because, as Dr. Frederick Heald, of Chicago, explains in the Journal of the American Medical Association, "baldness occurs in persons in whom calcification of the skull bones apparently has not only firmly knitted the cranial sutures, but also closed or narrowed various small foramina (openings to you) through which blood vessels pass. Since bone growth or calcification is generally greater in males than in females," it's the man who goes for the dandruff cures.

Mother keeps her hair because she keeps her brain open; father goes boneheaded and bald like Mussolini. Yes, we know Adolf still has lots of hair, but other hirsute authorities say that crazy people rarely lose their thatch.

Measured With Spoon

There Are Eight To Ten Teaspoons Of Tea In Ounce

"An 'ounce' of tea and four 'ounces' of coffee doesn't mean a 'ting to me,'" said a harassed housewife on reading the rationing order. "I want to know what it means in spoonfuls, and I haven't any scales with which to measure it out." Consumer Information Service made inquiries, and here are the answers: The Government tea tester at the Department of National Revenue, who obligingly turned into a coffee measurer too, reports that there are from eight to 10 level teaspoons of tea to an ounce, and five tablespoons to an ounce of coffee.

Experts at the Empire Tea Bureau claim, however, that most teas provide 15 level teaspoons and an ounce with an economist verifies this report.

Authorities point out, of course, that there are variations according to the type of tea and coffee being measured—some weigh less than others. Although opinions on the number of spoonfuls to an ounce differ, all are agreed, however, on one thing: that the rationing order means drastic changes in consumers' coffee and tea drinking habits.

Every slouch hat worn by an Australian soldier is made from the fur of about nine rabbit skins which years of experiments have proved unequalled for durability.

Coin'd By Churchill

Word "Commandos" Was Used By Him During Boer War

When the public talks about "Commandos" it is speaking of "special service troops," whether it knows it or not.

The men who made the daring raids on Lofofen, Vaagso, St. Nazaire and Dieppe—are "special service troops." And any one of these dynamiters, says Combined Operation Command, is a "special service trooper."

An individual cannot be a Commando, though he may be a member of one, for Commando is the formation or unit in which he serves. The word originated in the Boer war, applied to small mobile Boer formations operating behind British lines.

Prime Minister Churchill, a Boer war correspondent, first applied the word to British formations. His comparison of special service troops with Commandos caught the fancy of the public and the press.

Just for the record, Combined Operations say the plural is spelled without the "B"—"Commandos."

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.
By Alan Maurice Irwin

Once or twice I have let my temper run away with me in these columns and have said a good deal of what I thought about a number of Canadians who didn't seem to know that we are fighting a war.

Of course that "good deal of what I thought" was said in a manner not calculated to enrich the vocabularies of composers—if composers' vocabularies can be enriched—but, none the less, despite its moderation my language was intended to conceal none of my thoughts on the subject.

It is only fair then that having found something to boast about I should do my boasting with even less reserve than my crabbiness.

And it is something to boast about! At the risk of boring you with stories about the Reserve Army I am going to tell you what happened yesterday in my own battalion. Because that unit is representative of the whole Reserve Army and what happens in it is being duplicated all across the country I am not going to name it.

Yesterday in keeping with the set up of the Reserve Army, we were ordered to hold a full day's training in the open. Yesterday, I might mention, was Sunday. Unfortunately the weather was not only inclement—it was a downright, day-long "soaker."

We are not fair-weather-soldiers by any means but when your men are old-soldiers, "C" categories or youngsters you think about "hardening" them to the extent of risking a high percentage of pneumonia cases, so our commanding officer decided upon lectures and demonstrations indoors until the weather cleared.

But the weather didn't clear! In due course, when he felt that a full day's work had been done, the O.C. decided to dismiss the parade. That was all very well but he hadn't counted upon the eagerness of the new recruits.

Through their instructors these men asked if they might have some more instruction, taking advantage of a wet Sunday to bring themselves to the point where they could the sooner join their companies and get on with their regular training.

No one ever refuses a request of that kind and, since the basic training of officers is the province of the Regimental Sergeant-Major and myself, we asked for volunteer instructors and carried on for an hour and a half.

Without question I have never before seen people work so hard when they weren't compelled to do so. At the end of the period as an experiment I asked the recruits if they wanted to go home or, after 10 minutes for a smoke, would like to work another hour.

Only one man elected to go home—and that was because he had been on the night shift in the munitions factory and had worked all the preceding night.

When the time comes for active defence of Canada we'll have the satisfaction of knowing that men like these will have our safety in their care.

And mind you, there is no fooling about this Reserve Army of ours. The terms of engagement are for the duration of the war or, in the case of the men in the lowest age bracket, until they are old enough to volunteer for active service.

Of private soldiers, 45 days of training each year are required. These are divided into: 15 days in camp, 10 full Sundays, 60 nights—considered the equivalent of the remaining 20 days.

Non-commissioned officers, warrant officers and officers are required to put in 10 extra days of training which brings their quota of drill nights up to 90—plus their work as members of committees, orderly duties, etc.

"No fooling!" seems to be the proper description, doesn't it? Especially in view of the way the new recruits feel.

And don't let anyone tell you that middle-aged folk can't learn new tricks. You should see the progress made by men who have never before run into squad drill or the manual of arms!

It's not particularly easy to learn how to march, how to turn, how to change step or how to throw a rifle around so as it's always under your control—but these men are doing it and doing it faster than we did as young recruits 25 years ago.

Now let's come to the un-uniformed Individual Citizen's Army. We are going to have to learn new tricks, too. We are going to have to learn what our fathers and mothers did a quarter of a century ago, that were can't be won without sacrifice both in the front line and on the home front.

The casualty lists so far have been infrequent and small. Both those conditions will change. Our sacrifices on the home front have been infinitesimal. What's a little gasoline when none of us should be driving cars? What do tea and coffee matter when there is an abundance of milk and good, hearty hot water? And why use sugar when explosives to blast our enemies can be made from it?

We cursed the profiteers in the war of 1914-1919. This time through the operations of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, we can curb them before they get started.

It's up to us—let's do as good a job on the home front as the Individual Citizen's Army in khaki will do when McNaughton is allowed to point his "dagger" at the heart of Berlin.

MRS. MINIVER

Adapted From The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Picture
By HALSEY RAINES

CHAPTER I.

Mrs. Kay Miniver, her great decision of the day, having been made, hurried across the clamorous London railway station, and entered the carriage of the train marked "Kent". As she looked across the aisle and caught sight of the vicar of her own village, her face lighted up, while at the same time she glanced a bit self-consciously at the hatbox she was carrying. That box concealed her secret.

"Why, Vicar?" she cried. "Isn't this nice?"

The vicar smiled, and offered to lift the box up in the rack. Mrs. Miniver demurred, and explained that she couldn't possibly run the risk of forgetting the bundle.

"I know the feeling," said the vicar understandingly, as he glanced at a smaller parcel beside him. "Guess what this is?"

Mrs. Miniver hesitated. "Port?" she ventured archly.

The vicar's voice descended to a stage whisper. "Worse than that," he answered. "Cigars!"

"Well, why shouldn't you?" asked Mrs. Miniver. "My husband does."

"Ah, but he can afford it!" responded the vicar.

A slightly roughish, self-accusatory look crossed Mrs. Miniver's face. "I'm not so sure," she said. "He has a very extravagant wife. At least he had today, but I couldn't resist that hat."

She paused. "I do like things beyond my means sometimes."

Mrs. Miniver was an exceptionally young-looking woman to have a son at Oxford, and her face reflected a kind of warm, quiet dignity. Her three children and her husband idolized her.

Lady Beldon, who entered the carriage at that moment, was an aristocrat of the old school, with almost a feudal sense of supremacy and possessiveness. She was far beyond the three score and ten mark, but still made frequent shopping excursions to London.

"My dear man," she said, catching her breath, as she faced the vicar. "I've spent the whole afternoon being pushed about by middle-class women, buying things they can't possibly afford!"

"Oh dear!" said Mrs. Miniver impulsively. "That means me."

Lady Beldon stared. She was unaccustomed to such candor. "You're Mrs. Manning, aren't you?" she asked.

"The lawyer's wife?"

"No," rejoined her travelling companion quietly. "I'm Mrs. Miniver. And my husband's an architect."

"Hm-m," sniffed Lady Beldon. Not to be thrown off the trail, she returned to her first thought. "No wonder Germany's armistice," she growled.

"Everyone trying to be better than their betters. Middle-class government. That's the trouble. It's turned us into a nation of wet hens."

The vicar excused himself, concealing a smile, and in a moment Lady Beldon went browsing down the aisle in search of a vacant double seat.

"MIDDLE-AGE" WOMEN (38-52)

HEED THIS ADVICE!!

If you're cross, restless, nervous—suffer from flatulence, indigestion—caused by this period in a woman's life—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Made of pure herbs. Thousands of thousands of women endorse it. Follow label directions. Made in Canada.

Carol nodded. "No one has ever entered a rose in competition to my grandmother before," she said. "It's become a sort of tradition. She paused. 'I know it seems an awful thing to ask, but it means so much to her, and I thought perhaps as a favor, you might persuade Mr. Ballard to withdraw his entry.'"

Vin swung about. "I see, Miss Beldon," he said coldly. "So the feudal system still exists in this village."

"Vin, please," interrupted Mrs. Miniver.

"I mean what I say, reiterated Vin. 'This is supposed to be an open competition, but Mr. Ballard isn't of the ruling class.'"

"Remember, Vin," said his father. "Miss Beldon is a guest here and if you've got any manners at all—"

"Manners are everything, aren't they?" asked Vin ironically.

"If you feel something is wrong with our system, why don't you do something?" asked Carol. "I've spent most of my holidays these past years doing settlement work in London."

"The usual aristocratic evasion," said Vin in polite scorn. "You'll have to excuse me, Miss Beldon. He turned and strode from the room."

"Really, I must apologize," said Mrs. Miniver warmly.

"Oh, no, please," smiled the girl. "It's all right—and besides, he's rather nice, isn't he?"

Jimmie—That all depends on what he does.

"Humph. So you want a job. Do you ever tell lies?"

"No, sir, but I could learn."

The new Land Girl was doing her best, but she was evidently finding everything on the farm very strange.

Having had an incubator explained to her, and been asked if she fully understood it, she put her head on one side and, with a puzzled look, replied:

"Yes, but where does the hen sit?"

"Mother," asked little Peter, when the family had guests for dinner, "is the dessert too rich for me, or is there enough to go around?"

Jane: Do you understand baseball?

Joan: Perfectly; but why does that man run so hard with nobody after him?

Urchin—Porter, can I help you?

Porter—A little shrimp like you?

Urchin—Well, I could do the grunting when you carry the trunks.

"Did she promise to marry you?"

Oh, yes; but I've got to wait until they move next month. Just at present there's no room for me in her father's house."

Mandy—Ah wants a quaw of sanctified milk.

Greasy—Whut you'all means is pacified milk.

Mandy—Look here, small one, when Ah needs inflammation Ah'll specify.

"What made you decide to put off your wedding by two days at the last moment?"

"Well, you see, I reckoned it out that my silver wedding would come on a Saturday, and I always play golf on Saturdays."

"Have you paid your rates, Alf?"

"No, and I'm glad I didn't. I got a form today which said 'Final application,' so it looks as though they're going to give it up as a bad job!"

"Got anything snappy in rubber bands?" asked the smart boy from the big town.

"No," said the shop girl sweetly, "but we've got something awfully catchy in flypaper."

Customer—These sleeves are a mile too long.

Tailor—Well, how much shall I take off?

Customer—Oh, I guess about an eighth of an inch.

THE BIRD CHORUS

The National Audubon Society estimates the U.S. bird population at 5,750,000,000. No figure is given for Canada, says the Edmonton Journal; but a man who likes to sleep in Sunday mornings thinks it must be considerably higher, judging by the number of birds singing outside his bed-room window.

Man has learned to fly higher, faster, straighter, and farther than birds, and he is able to fly across country in weather that limits birds to short, local flights.

ARE YOU SURE OF TABLE ETIQUETTE?

The "Plate-Passer" Annoys

Ah, such retirement—she thinks. But passing plates on and on only annoys other guests who wonder, "Who invited HER?"

It's correct to be guided by the host, who indicates which plate is whose. Usually the woman on his right is served first. If you are helping yourself to a dish near you you might offer it to the person next you—but no elaborate passing!

Sure of such points—which are so easily learned—you can make such a charming impression. At the start of the meal, you let your partner pull out your chair for you. At the end, you leave your chair as it is—not awkwardly pushing it back in place.

You don't leave unpleasant pictures in people's minds—biting into a whole piece of bread, eating sticky food cake with your fingers. You break the bread as you eat it, use a fork with leek cake. And chickens bones? How to eat asparagus, canapés?

Your 32-page booklet tells how to eat these and other foods. Describes correct use of silver, when to use fingers; gives dinner etiquette for hostess and guest—course by course. Explains what to do at tea, buffet parties, restaurants, clubs.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Good Table Manners" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg, Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Tough Grain

Tough or damp grain is like the flu in that the sooner you can get rid of it, the better. The farmer with tough grain will be in a tough (1) position, this year. Due to the congestion in public storage, accommodation for tough grain will be extremely limited or entirely lacking.

The volume of tough grain is likely to be increased this year as a result of the more general use of combines, particularly in the hands of inexperienced operators who may start harvesting before the crop is ready. The following suggestions are reproduced from a statement issued by the Manitoba Department of Agriculture. They have special significance for Alberta and Saskatchewan farmers.

To Avoid Loss from Tough Grain

Allow grain in stock or swath to become thoroughly dry after a rain or heavy dew before threshing or combining.

Allow standing grain to become fully ripened before straight combining.

Weedy crops should be swathed before combining. Straight combining such crops adds to the moisture content of the threshed grain.

Farm Storage Suggestions

Weed seeds and other foreign material should be removed by cleaning before final storage. The larger the bin, the greater risk of spoilage.

Where grain must be stored on earth or concrete floors, a foot of straw covered with building or waterproof paper will assist in preventing spoilage. (Avoid use of tar paper.) Avoid leaky roofs. Exclude drifting snow.

Where labour permits, grain too moist to be threshed may often be stacked and carried over satisfactorily to thresh at a later date.

There are no practical ways of drying tough grain on the farm. Further particulars on farm storage of grain may be had by writing to your Provincial Department of Agriculture.

Eat Hash—and like it!

"I tell my family that as long as Jack is overseas, we'll eat hash and like it."

"WE ARE at war. It costs lots to win. It would cost everything to lose. So I don't figure that because we'll soon pay a small amount as compulsory savings, I can fold my hands and say 'That's that!' No sir! Some people may need compulsory savings to save something for their own good. But that's the minimum. I'm out to save all I can to buy War Savings Stamps and Certificates to help win the war and have something substantial put by for the days when there won't be all this work and overtime."

"I've christened my garbage can 'Hitler' and believe me he doesn't get anything that's worth anything."

Buy War Savings Stamps from druggists, banks, post offices, telephone offices, department stores, grocers, tobacconists and other retail stores. Certificates may be purchased for immediate delivery in denominations of $5, $10, $25 from banks, trust companies and post offices.
